MONONGAHELA TO PURCHASE PART OF ITS OWN $45,000 BOND ISSUE

Will Erect Municipal Building and Improve and Extend Sewers

TUNNEL PROJECT IS PLANNED

Hole to be Drilled Through Hill That Not Only Will Provide Sewer Outlet But Will Open Up Way For Coal Development.

Today marks the expiration of the limit for the filing of a protest to the issuance of bonds in the sum of $45,000 at Monongahela and as no referendum has been taken, the bond ordinance passed by the city commission several days ago will become a law. The city will at once proceed to the sale of the bonds, and as a new feature will buy a portion by the use of money in the sinking fund. By purchasing part of the bonds, interest money will be saved, and money provided by the sale of the bonds as needed. This is a plan permitted by the third class city charter authorizing a city commission to the purchase of bonds.

The $45,000 will be separated into two funds, $20,000 for the purchase of a site and for the erection of a municipal building and $25,000 for the improvement and extension of the sewer system. It is the intention to purchase ground for a municipal building at once and to proceed with its erection. It is expected the site that will be chosen is that at the corner of Main and Pike streets, known as the Nelson property.

The sewer project, as now planned, will be an unusual feat in engineering. Part of the plans call for the drilling of a tunnel 8 by 8 feet 690 feet long through one of the largest hills in the city. At the deepest point the tunnel will be 80 feet underground. The exit will be near a coke power plant, and incidentally will form a nucleus for the beginning of development of the Grall coal interests. This firm owns the coal through which the tunnel will be drilled and will later develop it, having enough to last for about 15 years.

The teacher is Miss Martha Andrew, a graduate of the Morris township high school and her work has been very successful. Three oof the eight pupils who have perfect records belong to the eight grade, two to the sixth and one to the fifth grade.

WILL BUY LOT OF NEW EQUIPMENT

Pennsylvania Railroad to Spend $20,000,000 for Rolling Stock and Apparatus

INDICATION OF PROSPERITY

Another indication of coming prosperity was indicated by an announcement made in the morning papers that the Pennsylvania Railroad company will go into the market today for approximately $20,000,000 worth of new equipment and for new material for cars and locomotives which it will build in its own shops. The equipment program includes 144 new locomotives, 146 all-steel passenger cars and about 10,000 freight cars. All the locomotives, 56 of the passenger cars and 2,102 of the freight cars will be built at the company's shops at Altoona, while the remainder will be placed with outside companies. The new equipment is to be used for replacement and will not be additions to the present equipment.

In a statement the company says that its policy of adding only steel cars to its passenger equipment is being followed with reference to its freight equipment, and that ultimately every train on the system, freight or passenger will be of all-steel construction.

The invitation for bids the statement says, marks the first equipment buying of any magnitude by the company for more than a year.

For Sale.

BURGESSES ARE NOT TO SERVE TWO TERMS

Governor Brumbaugh Vetoes Measure Permitting Town Executives to Succeed Themselves—Puts Kibosh on Other Bills

Burgesses are not to be permitted to succeed themselves, in spite of a bill passed by the legislature. Governor Brumbaugh put the kibosh on the scheme when he vetoed the bill Friday. He vetoed the bill on the theory that the act of 1893 on the question of ineligibility of burgesses to succeed themselves is working well and that the sentiment is in for one term for executives.

Governor Brumbaugh vetoed the following: Making an appropriation to the State Game Commission to pay salaries and traveling expenses, because this is not an opportune time to increase salaries; making it a misdemeanor to issue a check on a bank where there are not sufficient funds to the credit of the drawer to meet it and to refuse to make good the amount because it is unconstitutional, and to make a criminal court a collecting bureau is manifestly wrong.

The governor approved eight bills, including four relating to game, one being the Phillips bill designed to prevent fraud in securing the state allowance for the heads or pelts of noxious animals or birds. It provides $6 for each wildcat, $2 for each fox and $1 for each weasel or mink. Other game bills approved authorize the establishment of state game preserves on leased lands, as well as on state forest reserves; allow dogs trained in the field from September 1 to March 1; authorize killing of blackbirds when caught destroying nests, eggs or young of other birds, growing crops or fruit or berries, and empowering the Game Commission to direct killing of birds when they have become a nuisance.

Other bills approved were: Authorizing filling of vacancies in first-class city councils at any election; regarding filing of accounts of feeble minded persons; authorizing county commissioners to pay burial expenses of windows of soldiers, but not in excess of $50; conferring upon mothers the same rights in making wills as are possessed by fathers in regard to the custody of minor children.

BROWNSVILLE PEOPLE "FOR" VALLEY LEAGUE

Movement to Form Baseball Team Put Under Way There Quickly In Interests of Three Nearby Boroughs.

Brownsville people are showing enthusiasm in the project to organize a Monongahela Valley Baseball league. The following from the Brownsville Telegraph describes what has already been done at the "oldest town on the Monongahela" and gives evidences of what may be expected to follow:

The team will be controlled by nine directors, three from each borough. These directors will meet and elect a manager and a president.

The manager will select a team from candidates of the three boroughs, who present themselves for practice and show that they can hold a place on the team. Every member will donate his services, but have his expenses paid. If a team composed of locals cannot be secured, men from suburban towns will be furnished carfare.

The cost of each game will be approximately $24 or will require 162 paid admissions. A diamond has been donated by George Thompson, but the Snowdon field in the rear of the Caulley hotel, is also being considered.

Donora, West Elizabeth, Monessen and Charleroi are already in the circuit and the men in Brownsville left for Fayette City to organize a board of directors there.

"GENTLEMAN OF LEISURE" TO BE COYLE ATTRACTION

The Paramount picture at the Coyle Theatre next Tuesday will be "Gentleman of Leisure." The leading role of the play will be enacted by Wallace Eddinger. The picture although a roaring comedy in character contains a moral. Thursday "Rule G" a great railroad story will be the attraction.

An official of the Producers Coal and Coke company, which operates near there, states that his company has not banked an oven since the beginning of this year and that lately more ovens have been put in blast. He states also that the coking industry is gradualy resuming and before two more months have passed believes the coke works in various sections will be running to full capacity.

GETS FACTS OF MANUFACTORIES

Representative of The Census Department Here Collecting Statistics

RECORDS CAREFULLY KEPT

To get facts and figures pertaining to the operation of industries and manufactories of all kinds, W. Earl Harris was here today making his rounds, as a representative of the U. S. census bureau.

Every five years the census bureau compiles statistics of manufactories, showing the number of employes, the wages paid and every little detail connected with the operation of every plant of any consequence whatever. The records are carefully kept, and in time the figures are published.

Mr. Harris' visit has to do with the collection of such statistics. He has recently visited at Donora where he got statistics at the Donora Steel works and other plants. Next week it is expected he will be at Monessen.

HIGH SCHOOL JUNIORS GO THROUGH STEEL MILL

Members of the Junior class of Charleroi high school with George Traugh, a high school instructor at the head, visited at the plant of the American Steel and Wire company at Donora Friday. The class was escorted through the factory and shown details in the process of steel manufacture. They left at noon and returned on an evening train.

Speakers to be Entirely Home Men According to Plans of Committee

CIVIC LIFE THE KEYNOTE

Matters of Timely Interest in Development of Charleroi Will Be Treated in Talks—Dr. Hunter to be Toastmaster.

For the first time in history perhaps, the annual banquet of the Charleroi Business Men's Association, which will be held on Thursday evening, April 29, at the high school gymnasium, will be characterized and featured by addresses entirely by home men. The keynote of the banquet will be in the development of the civic and social life of Charleroi, and not so much attention will be given to the industrial side, as in the past.

Dr. J. W. Hunter, as chairman of the committee of arrangements will be the toastmaster. Among the speakers will be W. D. Pollock, H. J. Booth and W. R. Gaut. Others who have been asked to speak have not yet given definite answers.

Music will be a feature. The high school orchestra will play, and solos will be rendered by W. C. Clark and Warren Kinder. Also it is likely that a male quartet from the association will render various selections.

The meal will be served by the women of the Charleroi Library association and a good menu will be prepared. Details are being mapped out as rapidly as possibly by the committee which consists of Dr. J. W. Hunter, John B. Schafer and W. C. Clark.

FATHER AND DAUGHTER HAVE PROPERTY FIGHT

Question of Ownership of West Brownsville Real Estate Involved In Case to be Brought Before Washington Justice.

Charged by her father, John Frankovic, with having obtained his signature to a deed transferring property he owned in West Brownsville to her by false representations, Mrs. Margaret Pavic was placed under arrest yesterday. Both reside in West Brownsville. The daughter furnished bail for a hearing before Justice of the Peace J. F. Carmichael at Washington next Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Frankovic alleges that while he was ill in a Pittsburg hospital his daughter had him sign a paper which he thought was giving her the power to draw from funds he had in a bank. He claims that it was in reality a deed and that his daughter now refuses to return the property to him.

Mrs. Pavic says that her father did deed the property to her but that it was of his own free will and that mates her parent may be unsound on the subject.

FIRE PREVENTION EDUCATION

The eradication of the cow tick; the cure of hog cholera; the extermination of the mouth and foot disease; the supresion of the boll weevil; the prevention of the spread of contagious diseases; the relief of those suffering from typhoid fever and diphtheria; the purification of the milk supply and the preservation of the teeth have all received careful study and the expenditure of millions of dollars; and yet very little has been done in the way of educating the public, and particularly the children, concerning the cause and effect of the enormous waste by fire that occurs each year, nor by what means it can be stopped. More and more education is needed in the prevention of fire, thus reducing the expenses in the extinguishing of fires and sustaining loss loss caused by them, says the state fire marshal.

The fire waste in the United States in 1914 amounted to the tremendous sum of $220,276,750, and about one-tenth of this loss was in our own state. At least sixty per cent of this enormous waste, or $132,165,050, was caused by carelessness, which by thoughtfulness and care could have been prevented.

You may have sustained a portion of this loss and can realize the great inconvenience the loss entailed, and if the loss was one which was caused by your neglect to keep your home or business place free from fire breeding material you have probably learned a lesson that, although costly, may induce you to help the authorities in their endeavor to save careless ones from the result of their refusal to maintain at all times cleanliness in and about their property.

The thing to do is to get awake to your own interests and work for fire prevention and the reduction in the per capita that you are now compelled to pay for other people's losses, for you do help pay these losses as increased premium rates.

HOSPITAL FACTS.

The proposed cut of from $15,000 to $4,000 in the Charleroi-Monessen hospital appropriation comes, of course, as a disappointment, but it comes too as a challenge to the communities represented to make the hospital a better institution through greater aid at home. There is little reason to believe that the appropriation will be increased much if any. Perhaps the board may be enabled to get $5,000 for the two years' term; perhaps not.

It takes a very definite sum to finance the local institution, and that definite sum happens to be $500 per month. It follows that with the state only giving something like $167 a month, the community will have a lot to make up. It is not an easy problem in mathematics that confronts the managing board.

It is a fact that the local institution is being better conducted than it ever was, and its future seems brighter. Capable management means a lot, but it doesn't certainly assure success. Nothing can assure success without public help in conducting a hospital. The challenge is to the public and the challenge must be accepted if the hospital is to be operated on the scale that the needs of the community demand.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

The other morning a Fifth street family had rolled oats for breakfast, much to the delight of a tot of three who was particularly fond of this cereal. She silently accepted the portion she was given and ate it with a relish. Then she looked at the dishful on the table and blinked at her mother.

"Muver," she exclaimed, "may I have some rolling pin?"

"Don't you care for any postcards today?" asked a postal clerk as he handed the man the stamp he had requested.

"No, not today," said the man.

"Or perhaps you would like to have some new ones."

"No thank you."

"Would you like a money order?"

"No."

"Or perhaps you would like to open a postal savings account?"

"I do not."

"Then let me advise you to rent one of our letter boxes."

But the man had fled.

"Who was that fellow, and why did you ask him all those questions?" asked a fellow clerk.

"Then let mea dvise you you rent my barber. For years when he has shaved me he has bothered me with recommendations of massages, shampoos, hair cuts and hair tonics. I am even with him!"

Getting Rich.

When I was but a little lad,
My father used to say:
"Save all the pennies that you get..
And you'll be rich some day."

Now, father was a thrifty soul,
And wise among all men.
He saved his pennies and made good,
But times have changed since then.

I cannot save 'em as he did,
Although I've fumed and fussed.
The pennies that I try to save
Are gobbled by some trust.

Luke McLuke Says:

The reason why a man always gets mad when he is arguing politics is because the man he is arguing with is a thick head who has neither sense nor reason.

Your debts may seem big to you. But how would you like to be the world and owe every man a living?

Somehow or other the affinity microbe never bites the woman who does her own washing and ironing and the rest of the housework.

The difference between courtship and marriage is the difference between being able to go to see a girl when you want to and being compelled to go and see her when you don't want to.

A man often gets into the house after midnight without his wife hearing him. But he never gets out of the house in the morning without hearing his wife.

About 25,000 dead ones walk right past an undertaker's door every day in the year.

The man who gets mad because a girl tries to flirt with him when he is with his wife is the same fellow who gets mad because a girl won't flirt with him when his wife isn't along.

Invisible face powder is visible to everybody but the woman who uses it.

There isn't much difference. But you can make a friend by calling a man level headed, and you can start a fight by calling him flat headed.

When a man is afraid to hit his wife he consoles himself with the fact that he has strong will power.

ANCIENT GREEK TRAINING.

What It Did For the Boy Physically and Intellectually.

The manner in which the Athenians brought up their children is worth remembering.

At seven years of age the Athenian had entered the palestra, which was essentially a playground. All the first and better half of the day was spent in gymnastics, dancing, games and play. In the afternoon there were singing, some writing, some reading, all in the open air, and then came a long period of play again. Such was the schooling of the Greek lad up to the age of ten or eleven, and it did not differ essentially up to the age of sixteen, except in the severity of the exercises.

And yet the world has not ceased to marvel at the results of the Greek education. It produced the highest type of man, physically and intellectually, that the world has ever seen, which Galton says was as far in advance of the modern Englishman as the modern Englishman is in advance of the native African.

In physical beauty, courage and patriotism, in philosophy, literature, architecture and art, the Greeks have been the unsurpassed models of the ages and are still the inspiration of our schools today. But they placed the emphasis upon hygiene, exercise, games and play, which are too much neglected in these days. — Kansas City Star.

THE PLANET MERCURY.

It Is Difficult to Weigh, and Its Orbit Is Very Eccentric.

Though Mercury is one of the smallest of the planets, it is perhaps the most troublesome of all to the astronomer.

It lies so close to the sun that it is seen but seldom in comparison with the other great planets. Its orbit is very eccentric, and it experiences disturbances by the attraction of other bodies in a way not yet fully understood.

A special difficulty has also been found in the attempt to place Mercury in the weighing scales. We can weigh the whole earth, we can weigh the sun, the moon and even Jupiter and other planets, but Mercury presents difficulties of a peculiar character. Le Verrier, however, succeeded in devising a method of weighing it.

He demonstrated that our earth is attracted by this planet, and he showed how the amount of attraction may be disclosed by observations of the sun, so that from an examination of the observations be made an approximate determination of the mass of Mercury.

Le Verrier's result indicated that the weight of the planet was about the fifteenth part of the weight of the earth. In other words, if our earth was placed in a balance and fifteen globes, each equal to Mercury, were laid in the other the scales would hang evenly.—"Story of the Heavens."

Spain's Arbitration Court.

"The most unique and interesting institution for the settlement of civil suits in Spain," writes Thomas W. Palmer, Jr., in Case and Comment, "is the arbitration court. All contentions or disputes before or after the commencement of litigation, no matter how far advanced, can be submitted to an arbitration tribunal by agreement of all the interested parties. The exceptions to this are those suits involving political and civil rights, etc., or those matters in which the state is especially concerned. The arbitrators, whose number must not exceed five, are lawyers of twenty-five or more years of age and in full enjoyment of civil rights. In some instances the arbitrators may be laymen (amigables componedores). Appeal is made from the arbitration direct to the territorial appeal court. This method of deciding claims has proved successful and is employed considerably."

Speculative Life Insurance.

A mania for speculative insurances on the lives of public personages prevailed in England during the eighteenth century. Warren Hastings, the pretender, the rebel lord or the unfortunate Admiral Byng answered equally the purpose of speculation, and there were also regular quotations on the lives of notorious highwaymen. Sir Robert Walpole at one period of his career, when his life was endangered by popular tumults, was insured for many thousands, and when George II. fought at Dettingen 25 per cent was paid against his return. Such speculative insurances were, however, largely checked by the gambling act of 1774, which made insurable interest a necessary condition for a valid policy.

He Knew.

The professor of the class in English history was telling his young men of the impressionable age about the Elizabethan era when, suddenly turning to one of the young men, who seemed to be in a dream, with a faraway gaze, he said:

"And how old was Elizabeth, Mr. Case?"

"Eighteen last birthday," came the instant reply.

The Largest Reptile.

The largest existent reptile is the man eating salt water crocodile of southern Asia and Australia, which, when full grown, measures thirty feet in length from end of nose to tip of tail. One man makes hardly more than a mouthful for this fearsome creature.

She Knew It.

He—Didn't it ever occur to you that I was in love with you? She—Certainly, haven't you ever noticed me laughing to myself?—Topeka Journal.

JOHN MUIR AND TREES.

The Great Naturalist's Plea For the Preservation of Forests.

Few men loved and knew trees better than John Muir, the naturalist of the Sierras. He fought hard to preserve the forests, and in one of his books he says:

All sort of local laws and regulations have been tried and found wanting, and the costly lessons of our own experience as well as that of every civilized nation show conclusively that the fate of the remnant of our forests is in the hands of the federal government and that if the remnant is to be saved at all it must be saved quickly.

Any fool can destroy trees. They cannot run away, and if they could they would still be destroyed—chased and hunted down as long as fun or a dollar could be got out of their bark hides, branching horns or magnificent hole backlumes. Few that fell trees plant them. Nor would planting avail much toward getting back anything like the noble primeval forests. During a man's life only saplings can be grown in the place of the old trees—trees of centuries old—that have been destroyed. It took more than 2,000 years to make some of the trees in these western woods—trees that are still standing in perfect strength and beauty, waving and surging in the mighty forests of the Sierra.

Through all the wonderful eventful centuries since Christ's time—and long before that—God has cared for these trees, saved them from drought, disease, avalanches and a thousand straining, leveling tempests and floods, but he cannot save them from fools. Only Uncle Sam can do that.

AN ARCTIC DRAMA.

Playing to the Coldest House Known In Theatrical History.

Many and many a play has had a chilly reception. But imagine what it must have been to witness a play or to be an actor therein in a temperature 25 degrees below zero. It was a company of American sailors who made the record of playing to "the coldest house" known in dramatic history.

Dr. Kane, the famous arctic explorer, told an audience at old Masonic hall along in the fifties of a play given at an exceedingly low temperature by the crew of one of the ships on the 14th of February, 1851. The play was the farce called "The Mysteries and Miseries of New York."

The outside temperature was 36 degrees below zero. In the "theater" it was 25 degrees below behind the scenes and 20 degrees below where the audience was seated. One of the sailors had to enact the part of a damsel with bare arms, and when a cold flatiron, one of the properties, touched his skin the sensation was that of a hot iron.

On Washington's birthday the crew had another performance. Outside the ship's thermometer was 46 degrees below zero. Inside, by the aid of lamps, it was only 30 degrees below zero. "The condensation," said Dr. Kane, "was so excessive that we could barely see the performers. They walked in a cloud of vapor. Volumes of smoke accompanied all vehemence of delivery. Their hands steamed. When an actor took off his coat it smoked like a dish of potatoes."—Indianapolis News.

The Practice of Kicking.

Kicking, like charity, should begin at home. It ought to be the duty of everybody at home to object, persistently and effectively, to the specific overcrowded street car, the badly paved road, the encroaching doorstep, the neglected yard, the malodorous cesspool, the irresponsible motorcar and the reckless railroad—especially if he have any personal part in the maintenance of similar abuses. If the tendency of these evils were rightly apprehended, if a part only of the effort that is expended presumably in objecting to the generalized, foreign and futile subjects were bestowed on specific and tangible details, if we would forego the emotional pleasure of the impersonal "muckrake" to assail the evil at our very feet—especially if each one of us were careful to avoid offense in matters of the same kind—our country would surely be a much fairer one.—Unpopular Review.

No Accent.

Many stories are told of a former Canadian bishop who had passed his youth in Scotland, but flattered himself that not a hint of his origin could be gained from his speech or manner.

One day he met a Scotchman, to whom he said at last abruptly, "Hoo lang hae ye been here?"

"Aboot sax years," was the reply.

"Hoot, mon!" said the bishop sharply. "Why hae ye na lost yer accent, like mysel'?"

When Astronomy Was Young.

The ancients called Venus by the name of Hesperus when she was evening star and by the name of Phosphorus when she was morning star, for until her motions were studied it was not known that the two stars were one and the same planet.

Coin Abrasion.

By mere waste caused by coins rubbing one against another the civilized world, it is said, loses one ton and a quarter of gold and eighty-eight tons of silver annually.

Japan and the Figure 4.

There are no fours nor 44's in Japanese telephone directories because the names of the figure four—shi—is the term for death.

Boys in forming life attachments should not overlook the association of that fellow Will Power.—Omaha Bee.

Wireless in the Amazon Region.

In the Juamara region of the Amazon the natives use a crude system of wireless telegraphy, which, it is claimed, has been in operation for thousands of years. The transmitter found by an explorer was a hollowed trunk of a tree suspended from a horizontal pole stretched between two stumps. Inside the transmitter had been arranged much like a violin, and it was explained that when the instrument was struck smartly with a small rubber hammer a vibration was created that carried for miles over the hills. The receiver is very similar to the transmitter, except that it is placed on a hardwood platform, the base of the hollowed tree trunk being grounded on the platform. When the message is struck in the neighboring village, sometimes thirty miles away, this receiver catches the vibrations, causing a jerky, singing sound. The sound system, it is said, can be read by the members of the tribe, and in this way news of victories and other happenings are told throughout the countryside.—Argonaut.

Washing Day In Sicily.

The Sicilians have the reputation of not washing themselves overfrequently, but if they are remiss in this respect they more than make up for it by washing their garments—washing, in fact, being a perennial occupation among the women. The songs of the women folk as they scrub the cloth of their husbands and children outside the doors of their homes, if living a city, or in some brook or running stream, if living in the country, are a noticeable feature of lower class Sicilian life.

The long spikes on the prickly pear leaves and aloe plants make splendid natural pegs on which to dry the clothes, and in all the rural districts you will see them thus utilized, but if they do not happen to be sufficiently handy the clothes are often stretched out upon the mountain side to dry. The occupation and recreation of most of the poorer women may be summed up in three words—washing and gossip.—Wide World Magazine.

The Star Alcyone.

The size of the star Alcyone and its distance from the sun are both unknown and, so far as can now be seen, must remain unknown. It has no parallax large enough to be measured by the most accurate modern micrometrical methods.

That is, take a large telescope with you, go to Alcyone, turn, look back this way, then the entire diameter of the orbit of the earth around the sun, a huge ellipse, 185,765,000 miles in diameter, if a bright line in space so that it could be seen, would appear to be so small that the telemicrometer could not measure it. Not knowing the distance, the size cannot be known.

But, judging from its light when compared with that of other suns whose distances are fairly well known, it must be colossal—many times larger than our medium sized star, the sun.—New York American.

Art Criticism.

It is related that almost the last work Sir Edwin Landseer was engaged on was a life sized picture of Nell Gwyn passing through an archway on a white palfrey. This picture, in which the horse alone was finished, was bought by one of the Rothschild family and given to Sir John Millais to complete. One morning a celebrated art critic called on the painter and was much impressed by this work. "Ah, to be sure," he said, going up close and examining a deerhound in the foreground of the picture, "how easily one can recognize Landseer's dogs! Wonderful, isn't it?" "Yes; it is wonderful!" said Sir John, lighting his pipe. "I finished painting that dog yesterday morning and have done the whole of it myself."

German Army Shoes.

Leather used for German army shoes is the result of many tests. It is rather dry compared with American vegetable tanned leather. However, it is made dry so that the oxidizing oils and fats will not rot the leather fiber during the many years that it may be held in storage. Every soldier when he gets his army shoes also gets a can of shoe dressing, with which he dresses his shoes. This keeps them pliable and water resisting. The boots are crimped. They have only two seams. They are practically water tight. The thread used for stitching them is hand waxed. The absence of blackings of any nature tends to save the life of the boot. It rejects the sun's rays too.—Hide and Leather.

Argentina's Natural Bridge.

In Argentina there is a natural bridge that is one of the most wonderful in the world. It spans the Rio Mendoza and is known as the Inca bridge. It is the work of nature and not, as was once popularly supposed, of the Incas. The road on which it occurs was probably a highway made by the Peruvian Incas, who took advantage of the phenomenon by leading their road over this natural viaduct.

A Prosperous Scheme.

"Doing any good?"

"Yep. Got a business man's athletic class. Tuition, $5 a year."

"Well, those rates are attractive, but too low to pay you."

"You don't get the idea. They all drop out in about two weeks. Then I start another class."—Judge.

BAYONET CHARGES.

Hand to Hand Conflicts Are Rare Upon the Field of Battle.

In a talk about military methods in warfare General Stephen M. Weld, in discussing stories of bayonet charges, said:

"I do not know of a single case in our war where bayonets were actually crossed. I heard of one or two, but I never happened to see one.

"In the numerous charges made by our corps in the Wilderness campaign the only one we ever made successfully was on the 17th of June. One division had already charged and been repulsed. Our division was then ordered to make a charge across a plain some 200 yards wide. Colonel Gould had command of the division, which placed the brigade in my hands.

"Before charging the men were ordered to remove the caps from their guns and when they did charge were told to log it like blazes, which they did. In almost no time we were over the 200 yards, subjected to a storm of shell and canister and only one volley from the infantry in the enemy's trenches. One-half of the men in our regiment were lost in this charge.

"Here was a case where you would suppose we might have crossed bayonets. On the contrary, the Confederates fled, the same as we would have done had we been attacked. We captured their knapsacks and everything they had in the trenches just as they were."—Exchange.

A FAMOUS DETECTIVE.

Vidocq Was a Notorious Thief Before He Joined the Police.

Modern detectives, as a rule, are fitted for their work by a long course of police training. But not so Vidocq, the great French detective, who was born in Arras in 1775. He began life as a baker and early became the terror of his companions by his athletic frame and violent disposition. At the same time he was a notorious thief, and after many disgraceful adventures he enlisted in the army.

In 1796 he returned to Paris with some money, which, however, he soon squandered. Next he was sentenced at Lille to eight years' hard labor for forgery, but repeatedly escaped, and in 1808 he became connected with the Paris police as a detective.

His previous career enabled him to render important services, and he was appointed chief of the safety brigade, chiefly composed of reprieved convicts, which purged Paris of the many dangerous classes. In 1818 he received a full pardon, and his connection with this service lasted until about 1828, when he settled at St. Mande as a paper manufacturer.

Soon after the revolution of 1830 he became a political detective, but with little success. In 1848 he was again employed under the republican government, but he died penniless in 1857.—London Standard.

Queer Pronunciations.

There are many names of places in England that puzzle the stranger. Happisburgh, in Norfolk, for instance, is pronounced "Hazeboro." Abergavenny simply drops a syllable and becomes "Abergenny," and it is alleged that St. Neots sounds more like "Snoots" than anything else. Cirencester seems to vary from "Sister" to "Sizeter." In Suffolk Waldringfield is "Wunnerful" and Chelmondiston "Chimston," while in the adjoining county of Norfolk Hunstanton is "Hunston," and in the west country Badgeworthy is "Badgery" and Cornwood "Kernood." Huntingdonshire claims the purest English, but they call Papworth "Parpor." And not far from there a motorist turned upon a rough road and asked the intelligent laborers where it would take him. "That road," said the honest countryman, wiping his brow, "will take you to 'Ell, sir." The courageous motorist went on and found Ellsworth, which is pronounced "Elser."—Manchester Guardian.

Fruitful Combination.

In New York a new teacher found that a little negro girl was named Fertilizer Johnson.

"Are you sure Fertilizer is your right name?" she asked.

"Yes, ma'am," replied the little girl.

"Well, tell your mother to come here," said the teacher.

The mother came the next day.

"Yes, Fertilizer is right," she said. "You see, I named her after her father and mother both. Her father's name is Ferdinand, and my name is Liza, so we called her Fertilizer."—New York Globe.

Her Reason.

The beautiful girl was writing a letter.

"I am writing," she mused, "not because I have something special to say, but because I have nothing special to do."

Pure Logic.

Liberty commands the highest price of all known things. Its price is so high that nobody can pay it.

Proof. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. Eternal vigilance is to be ever on the job. To be ever on the job is to have no leisure or vacation. To have no leisure or vacation is to be a slave. To be a slave is not to have liberty. Therefore in order to be free we must enslave ourselves, which is absurd. Q. E. D.—Judge.
